GRATZ, Austria, May 7. DIVER at 10:30 o'clock this morning succeeded in reaching the party of tourists who have been I'll imprisoned in the stalacite cav-27, owing to a sudden rise in the water, which blockaded the passage into the cave with timber and bould The diver found all seven of the tourists alive. It was at first believed that eight persons were imprisoned, but this turned out to be a mistake. All were extricated from their perilous position at 4.45 o'clock this afternoon. The news that the tourists were still alive was received with great rejoicing by the crowds of people who had gathered about the cavern in order to watch the work. The engineers, who have been at work day and night ever since they were ordered to the spot when the local authorities announced their inability to force an entrance into the cave, have had a very difficult task in making an opening. The en-trance was blocked by timber and huge loulders buried beneath a mass of smaller floo! debris.

CLEARED WITH DYNAMITE,

After the matter had been investigated, it was found that it was neceseary to use dynamite in order to clear vay the obstructions which prevented the entrance of a diver into the cavern. With the pimest care the engineers went to work and successful in explodng a veral charges which disturbed but did not entirely remove the obstruction The engineers were compailed to work slowly and with the ut- on in advance. most cuntion, as it was feared that a cave were believed to have been removed sufficiently to enable a diver to lescend with some chances of entering the cave. When the tress were bauled away and all was believed to be clear, the diver Fischer made another and this time succe-sful descent to the mouth of the cave. He was absent a long time. The people generally bereport that all the tourists were dead Consequently there was great enthus;asm when he respressed and informed the crow-is that he had found all the

Fisher told the engineers that although the tourists were alive, they appeared like persons half bereft of reason, as the terrible nervous strain to which they had been subjected had almost driven them mad. They had apparently taken a considerable supply of provisions with them when they went into the cavern over a week ago, as they still had left, according to the diver, a little bread and cheese and some candies burning.

A PERSON OF ANXIETY.

The imprisoned persons told the diver that they had passed through a period of awful anxiety and terror. They had been able to hear the attempts made to rescue them, but the work seemed to them to progress so slowly that they had almost abandoned ell hope of ever escaping. The noise made by the explosion of the dynamite cartridges cheered them, though they re in dread of being buried beneath falling rock.

The engineers this afternoon widened the narrow channel through which Fischer first succeeded in entering the cavern, and at a little before 5 o'clock this afternoon all of the sufferers were got out. Six of them got out without nesistance, but the seventh was so we k that he had to be helped.

Emperor Francis Joseph issued instructions to keep him informed of the progress of the work. He was notified of the safety of the tourists immediately after Fischer made his report, and in reply, the emperor teleed his satisfaction at hearing that the reacue had been successfully accomplished.
